Our Mission

As a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, Scoop San Diego's mission is to celebrate everyone's love of ice cream as a catalyst for social change. We raise money for organizations that support San Diego's most vulnerable communities

Scoop San Diego has helped serve as my ice cream roadmap to the best tasting ice cream and gelato you can find in the city. I am now starting to become a regular customer at so many different shops located in San Diego.

Brandon Pulido, Past Festival Attendee

Ice cream is amazing because it brings joy to people and is a great way to start change. We get to do this through Scoop San Diego and the ice cream festival while supporting local communities.

Scoop San Diego Ice Cream Festival

Daniel Szpak turned his lifelong love of ice cream into a meaningful way to give back. The cofounder of North Park's beloved Hammond's Gourmet Ice Cream sold his share of the frosty favorite a few years back to focus on his career as clinical research nurse, but just couldn't give up the sweet stuff.

In 2019, he created Scoop San Diego, the city's first charity ice cream festival. Szpak's passion project checked all the boxes. It was a fun way to bring people together, give back to the community (100 percent of net proceeds get donated to a local nonprofit), support underserved communities, and treat his taste buds to samplings from an array of local shops.

Scoop San Diego ice cream festival raises money for the Monarch School for homeless children

Brittany Jackson, left, and Lexi Martinez scoop ice cream during the first annual Scoop San Diego Ice Cream Festival in North Park on Sunday. The two were graduates of the Monarch School and were serving a special honey rosemary ice cream made by Stella Jeans Ice Cream with rosemary grown at the school. The event featured a variety of ice cream and gelato vendors from San Diego with the proceeds going to the Monarch School, which supports homeless youth in San Diego with educational needs. (K.C. SAN DIEGO — Hundreds of people flocked to North Park for the first Scoop San Diego Ice Cream Festival on Sunday — which raised roughly $10,000 for the Monarch School for homeless children.

A disc jockey played music as people of all ages tasted gourmet gelato and ice cream from some of the city's top vendors, from Stella Jean's to Mariposa Ice Cream to Gelati & Peccati.

Featuring more than 25 local ice cream and gelato shops sampling their delicious creations, this one-day festival invites attendees to taste the day away with longtime favorites and new flavors from purveyors including MooTime Creamery, Baked Bear, Holy Paleta, Gelati & Peccati, and more from 11am to 4pm. This year, an exclusive VIP lounge has been added to the day's festivities, where guests can meet the creators of their favorite chilly treats and try unique flavors made especially for the festival.
